Neil Patterson has been making pots for over thirty years. He has a BFA from the Cleveland Institute of Art, an MFA from Louisiana State University, and studied at Cardiff University in Wales. He has been artist in residence at The Clay Studio in Philadelphia. He taught at Tyler School of Art for seventeen years and leads workshops nationally. He begins on the wheel and handbuilds from thrown pieces. Neil aims to make pots that are beautiful to look at, comfortable to use, and with texture that brings out the natural liveliness of clay. He fires Cone 6 electric. Neil and his wife Sandi Pierantozzi work in Philadelphia. See www.sandiandneil.com.
